“ The sound of her laugh will always be with me. She had a great one and a memorable one. I'm so grateful I got to see her again at Christmas when she came to my house. She was loved by us all. Truly tragic to lose her so young but I'm confident she is in a better place. Miss you girl...

“ I have so many memories with Mindy from childhood to being grown. One of the funniest ones i have was when we was kids i was staying at my aunts place. I was sleeping with Mindy on the top bunk. She was by the wall and i was on the edge. Well i was trying to get comfy and lifted the blanket while doing so. Needless to say she farted around the same time and i got hit with that big cloud of stench. When that hit me i almost fell out of bed. She grabbed a hold of me then proceeded to tell me " i told you not to lift the blanket". We recently was talking about things this story came up. We laughed so hard about it and she again told me " i told you not to lift the blanket". I also remember when we walked down the road as we got older. I had a walkman and the new cassette single of Tha Crossroad by bone thugs. We listened to that song over and over taking turns listening to it. She and I both said that was our song. I will truly miss you my cousin. I love you.
