“ Boo Boo. Thank you for a lifetime of memories my homie. There's not one bad thing I can say about you and this literally not one bad memory I have involving you- that says a lot about the man you are and your character. I miss the simpler days bro when our bands were playing shows around the city and you know things just were so much easier back then, and then we got older and life gets harder- and God needed an angel like you up there, I'm grateful for the time, 29 almost 30 years that I knew you homie. Love always and forever your boy Troy

“ When I met Ambrose we were in high school my Senior year and we were also in weight training and worked out together. Over the years since then I would run into him and we would talk about a our lives such as work and so on to just catch up on how life was.. He was definitely a good man and I always considered him a friend! R.I.P bro you most definitely will be missed!!

“ Back in high school one year Ambrose and I had Recreational Sports, Weight Lifting, and Advanced Weight Lifting. In that order. We pretty much spent 12th grade joking around and lifting weights. I'll miss you friend.
