“ First time I saw him he was about 10 years old running through a field being chased as were my brothers and sisters by about 30 black kids from the school they were attending. All the kids were running for their life except Charles Charlie as we call them at the time he would stop and grab the rocks that the other kids were throwing at them and run at them and throw them back he became a family friend up until he was about 16 years old at that point I had moved away and the only came back occasionally I haven't seen him in 40 years but I'm glad that he turned out to be a good man he was definitely a good young man at the time!
