“ There are too,any admirable accomplishments by my brother Clyde to mention here . What stands out to me are those of our early years (before our sister Shirley) . As the oldest son it always fell on Clyde to forge forward; always fighting and demanding his rights as a young man with our parents. His right to work ; his right to get a drivers license ; to get his first car ; his right stay out late and hang with his friends. Clyde fought with our parents for each of these rights : and usually won . It was his courage and determination that allowed his brothers ; Dave and myself to move easily and pass into responsible young adults. GOD bless his devotion to fight for all our rights and freedom . You made our growth easier.
