“ We grew up together in South Omaha, Ne. In the true sense of the term “Best Friends”..... that is exactly what we are to each other. Nothing will ever replace those memories and I am soo fond of that friendship and how it has survived thru time.

“ He will always be my ornery little brother. Since I was 4 years older, we were not close. He was always a worker, thrifty, neat and intense. I remember when he came home from boot camp, his nephew, my son Bobby was coming home from school. He was 5. A load of cattle had escaped a truck and was headed for him. Buddy ran out in front of the cattle and carried him safely across the street. He was a hero. And he sure looked handsome in his Marine uniform. Mama and Daddy were proud of him. As young adults our lives sort of separated. But he was always my family and we prayed for him and his family always. In our later years we grew closer and appreciated each other more. 70 years is God's blessing on a life. I'm glad he was my brother.
