“ I am sorry we could not be there today, I want to remember Butch laughing and joking with me. We had our own death within the family. I will be there for Kris and have talked to her everyday. That to me matters most. Be there for those you love that are hurting.

“Wow... where to start. I will by saying that Butch may of seemed tough to some, but his heart was mush, full of love when it came to Kris, his children, grandchildren and doggies. So many happy and good times with him. He knew how much I loved bonfires and Kris would tell him we were coming up and he would go to the wood shop to get starter wood and when we got there have the fire all ready to go. So many fun tales and laughs at those bonfires, some til 1 am. I would go there as soon as I unloaded the van and there is Butch with Molly laying across him in the recliner. Then Buddy, same thing , laying across him. He loved them so very much. Ok I will leave this with the funniest story, well for him. I was cleaning out my culvert and my jeans fell down, then I hear this hard laughing from across the road. I just held up my shhhh finger and well I hope he kept my secret, nah, he told Kris. Thank you for 21 years of friendship, laughter and love. Kris, I am not walking out on you. Here for you anytime and you know I mean it. Love you.
