“ Jeff was such a huge part of my young life. I can barely think of a memory where his smile and goofy laugh wasn't part of the ensemble. I remember watching Monty Python's "The Meaning of Life" with Jeff, and we both started laughing, hysterically. At one point, Jeff looked at me and said "I hope we are laughing at the same thing, or else we might not have the same sense of humor. We both laughed even harder. I regret losing touch over the years, but I don't regret one moment that we spent together as teenagers. Godspeed, Hadder! Make them laugh. Everyone needs it!

“ Jeff was one of my first, and best, team leaders I had at warren truck. He welcomed me in and make me feel comfortable in a new environment. His big smile and even bigger laugh would make anyone feel better. Jeff was one of them people I think everyone loved and wished they had more time with, he is surly going to be missed. One of my favorite memories of Jeff would have to be when he would turn his hat backwards sag his pants and pretend a drill motor was a microphone. He be dancing around lip singing to vanilla ice 😊. Rest east my friend until we meet again !
