“ What do I say about one of the nicest guys in my life . Going up there during my childhood was always exciting because you never knew what you were going to do , but when you left you had fun . As an adult I got to enjoy his company and how he loved my family... Being around him was infectious , made me want to be a better person. He is definitely someone to look up to.... I love you uncle John ...

“ This man was truley one of the nicest men I ever met in my life. To say he was a 2nd father would be an understatement! John,Bonnie,Suzie,Joy and Cindy became family. My greatest memory is when John was working the "boat job." We would go down there at all hours of the night,ride the train and fish in between the ferries. I caught my first walleye fishing off the end of the "apron". For yous that don't know that's where the Grey Fox is anchored now. My heart goes out to the girls and grandkids. He will be missed terribly! God Speed John,till we can go fishing again!

“ Working on the train with John always made our work a joy. He would bring food to share that was kept warm. Now he can be with the Lord at the Great Roundhouse.

“ When I was young, John was just like a second father to me. I spent so much time at his house with Bonnie growing up. I've always thought he resembled Johnny Carson in looks and with his humor. He never said my last name right, he had a different way of saying "Barenbrugge" every time, which always made me laugh. I remember late nights at Grand Trunk and riding in the locomotives. There were always an assortment of animals at the Perdue's house; which I absolutely adored :) Most of all I remember what a great father and person he was. He will be missed dearly. Rest in peace John. Love forever and always, Becki (Barenbrugge) Shafran

“ When I was young our parents took us to the Detroit Zoo. It was the first time I ever tasted a yoo-hoo soda. Uncle John convinced me to try it.
I remember so many things---out families grew up together...
My latest memory was me asking if what he does for fun and him replying, "I haven't had any fun since your dad died."
