“ Somebody recently told me that you told them that you were very proud of me, and that you loved and missed you so much... They told me that you knew they knew me and when I asked why you never reached out, they said that you didn't know if I wanted to talk to you or not... To be honest, I have driven by your house so many times, thought to stop to see you, but I honestly thought you didn't want to talk to me, that you didn't want to see me, thought that you didn't think of me as a son. It tears me apart now that I didn't.. I may have not been a Lambert or have your blood, but you have always been my dad. You were the only father that I've ever known. You came into my life when I was 3 years old, married my mom and gave me an older brother and a little brother. I remember you asking me one day how I felt about you legally adopting me, and I wish you would have. But at the end of the day, adopted or not, you are my dad and I always have always loved you. I miss you so much dad!

“ I was 14 when Joe was born aunt Mary was 12 and she and I always wanted to hold him and love on him. Joe and Lucy lived with us when Joe and Floyd were babies. We always said you were our babies too. We took good care of both of them. I left for CA when I was 18 so I missed so much of the growing up time. Never stopped loving you Joe.

“ Joe...where do I even start? We met at Bev's, and nothing was ever the same after that. You were my best friend, euchre partner, and my partner in crime. Many nights together cooking at Bev's, and then off to breakfast at Hardee's after a long bar Rush. And although we weren't close in our later years in life, you were never far from my mind. I love you buddy, and I'm really going to miss you. Save a spot for me at the euchre table up there. Rest easy now bro.
