“ My Uncle Len was one of the kindest people I've ever known. After our families stopped going to Grandpa Joe and Grandma Grace's Detroit home for Christmas Eve every year, we started gathering at area hotels, renting out suites. One of the things my dad and I loved most about the holidays was playing cards with Uncle Len. He would beat us, virtually every time... just pummel us -- regardless of the game. Somehow, even though we lost, playing with Uncle Lenny was indescribably enjoyable. He was a man who could beat you and make you feel like you had been victorious. Len would look you in the eye and ask how were, and he would listen closely to your answer with genuine interest and true concern. He didn't often talk about himself, but he sure cared about how you and your family were. The kindness, the humor, the praise he had for everyone, the honesty -- they all made him the guy you wanted to be around, the one you couldn't wait to see and talk to. My Uncle Lenny was one of the best men I have ever known. I miss him. Thank God for the years we had with him.
