“ I only knew Lindsey for a short period of time.. I met her in 2011 at Dakota High school. Our lockers were right next to eachother. Along with my sisters & another student. We all bonded instantly because we were the new kids. We all arrived new to the high school after the new years. It was scary & lonely. & we bonded over that. During the break periods it was comforting that we all had someone to talk to. Lindsey, when i met her had already gone through so much. We were so young, & she carried so much hurt. I had so much respect for her. She kept a picture of her dad in her locker. She talked about him all the time. & how much she missed him. Lindsey was misunderstood.. but i could see . her. She was hilarious.. so sweet, very wise beyond years. She was a rare genuine one. She is such a beautiful soul. In the short time i knew her , i saw so many struggles she dealt with, it hurt me to see. I knew you'd find peace someday because your soul deserved it. I hate this happened to you. But i'm so thankful you found peace you beautiful girl.
