“ I don't even know where to begin with our love of Mark...but I can say it doesn't end here.

Mark and I have our ups and downs over the last few years, but one thing was always for certain - our love for Chris was never ending. Even though Chris was an adult - he was my husband, but he was also Mark's baby boy. Mark's love came through and showed - Chris always would be his baby boy.

Mark had a love for the Lord, a knack for electronics, a fascination with outer space, a compassion for every living being - both animals and humans. He loved nature - camping and fishing and just basking in the sun, enjoying some good meat on a grill. He loved just traveling and seeing the sights.

He was a truly generous soul. He could find the good in people - even if there was bad, he would seek out the good - and that is all he would try to see. He could empathize with people, probably for all he's been through. He was giving. If he had something, and someone needed it - he would put others before himself. He gave very selflessly.

Even when we went to Cadillac and walked in his house, his Bible was next to his chair and a picture of him and Chris with a fishing bait on top of it adorned his wall. This is probably what I will remember most about him: a man with a love of God, who passed so much love onto others.

We will miss him. We always will. We have a love for him that will never end. He is at peace; there is no more pain, no more struggle for him. He is with God and I know he will forever watch over us, until we meet again.

“ Dear Mark's family - I'm very sorry for the passing of Mark. I'll always remember visiting with Mark at our family gatherings as a kid(a very long time ago). I always liked his unique laugh...it reminded me of Uncle Dane.

I'm also regret not making an effort to know him and his family better over the past 30 years. I wish he new that we loved him....as we do the rest of the Satterlee's.

Peace and Grace be with you Mark.
