“ Great Great grandma Marguerite Helena Lippincott
My Grandma was loved by all. She was sometimes the glue to a family that was very separated. She was very intelligent, very Stern, very understanding. And very stubborn.

Grandma had routines for everything. She liked her house very neat. She liked her house very organized. She absolutely loved Vanilla Ice cream, had a scoop every night before bed. Grandma used to watch wheel of fortune in jeopardy, religiously. She outlived pat SaJaks and Alex trebecks careers.

She loved old and very seldom new country music. She was very set in her ways. She always told me to put things back cleaner than the way you found it.

*She loved cooking. She loved to feed people. She loved to offer everything in the house. One time she tried offering the entire house to my friends and they kept saying no, and finally she offered them a cookie and one of my friends. Eyes lit up is it a gramma cookie? She said, yes, and he's like, well. Okay, then yes, I'll take a gramma cookie. She would always think she burned or over cooked or messed the recipe up. We loved those cookies the best. We would assure her that gramma you have outdone yourself thank you for marvelous cookies. and she loved that phrase she would compliment people oh that was marvelous in a slightly southern accent. She took us to the movies took us to karate, school. she loved singing and dancing. She used to sing on the radio. She loved playing card games, rummy and solitaire and watch t v.*

Great Grandma took care of us. She was the glue but her daughter my Nana with grandpa's help was the rock. They took care of Great grandma in the background.

Gramma was kind to everyone. But she was stubborn when it came to her thoughts and the way things should be. When we went with her to lunch with her lady friends. Her humor was very funny! They loved her as did everyone who met her. She would be able to make anyone smile or laugh. She had a way with people. When she worked at Crowley's and Maloofs she had people only ask for her. She helped everyone of us with a place to stay. She was giving. Donated to church, different organizations, volunteered her time even worked in her eighties. She will Always be remembered always missed.
