“ My Uncle Mike was a kind and gentle man. He loved my Aunt and cousins very much. As I grew older he gave advice to keep the peace and avoid argument. He worked hard and provided for his family so they were never in need.

I was 5 years old when we met. Through my life I always thought Uncle Mike's everlasting blonde hair and mustache were amazing.

I loved it when he tried a tasty food and said with surprise, "This is delightful!"

Uncle Mike loved old western movies. He knew the horse's name for each main character, and frequently commented, "Horses are magnificent beasts.". Uncle Mike was known for talking during movies much to his young daughters' chagrin.

Uncle Mike was a big help whenever we were sick at home, and gave my Mom advice over the phone. We still use his advice today and pass it to multiple families with small children. He believed preventative hand washing went a long with in children's health.

We will miss Uncle Mike dearly.
