“ I have nothing but great memories of Miguel, someone who I was proud to call my brother. A couple things that stick out are he was so genuine a person, and definitely a straight shooter. If you wanted a no B.S. straight answer to something, he would give it to you and probably make you laugh at the same time. From the time I first started coming by 1024 Howard St. (The House of Bea) he made me feel welcome, we just saw eye-to-eye from the start and he was also one of the funniest people I've known. One memory I had was when we were living in Canada, Miguel spent a lot of time at our place as he knew a lot of people in Canada. At this time my eldest child Cierrah was in the midst of the terrible two's. Now back then if Cierrah wanted to tear up a room she was very thorough, meaning she would definitely finish the job, no losing interest or anything like that. So this particular day she had spread spaghetti sauce all over the living room carpet. Miguel walks in, looks at her handi-work and all he can say is: " Cierrah why are you so tearupable". So he basically created a new word to describe her level of destruction, this is the type of stuff that made me laugh. Miguel was very intelligent no doubt, for starters he was born in January and we all know its a proven fact that those of us born in January are the smartest segment in society, Mensa level smart. Another story was when we were getting ready to move to Wisconsin and we stored a bunch of our furniture at 1024 Howard, including a glass top coffee table. So when we're leaving for Wisconsin and go by to get all our stuff, one thing missing, the coffee table. Asked what happened and was informed apparently Miguel and his girlfriend were arguing and to put an end to the fight Miguel picked her up and sat her down ass-first into the glass coffee table. She wasn't hurt but the coffee table was toast because she went right thru it. My point is I'd gladly sacrifice that coffee table for memories like this of Miguel, which will keep me laughing eternally. One last thing, the last time I talked to Miguel was a while ago and it was a great conversation, I just don't remember what we talked about. I don't think its important and I will hold onto the tone of that conversation as one of my lasting memories of Miguel. I'm also gonna remember him as the guy who missed his calling, I believe he could have had a career as a stand up comic, he had me laughing all day. RIP
