“ I have fond memories of when the Spadafore family owned and operated the J&S Restaurant and the Shoe Repair. Some called the restaurant J&S, some called it the Sisters but the Crocker family always called it Pauline's. Jean would allow us to play the pinball machine with a closed blind so the Police couldn't see us but it was a no no when Pauline worked. Back then it was illegal for underage kids to play the pinball machines. For a dollar you could take home ten hamburgers. Sincere Condolences to the Lomp and Spadafore families. So sorry to read of Pauline's passing. Been family friends for years. The friendship started with my in laws and continued with us after they passed. My father in law and husband worked with Dick at the paper mill. Our condolences and prayers to the families.
