Beyond his professional accomplishments, he was a man with a beautiful soul and a big heart. Always ready to lend a hand, he loved helping his neighbors and friends whenever they needed it. His kindness, humility and unwavering support touched countless lives.

He found joy in the simple things; spending time with his family, soaking up sun at the beach, cheering for the Detroit Tigers, and attending NASCAR races. Those moments brought him happiness, and his presence brought joy to others.

“ Rich arrived this past April and helped give our house a long overdue improvement. It was so important to me to have a bit of stone added to our house as my dad was a bricklayer. It was a very cold spring day when we met Rich. I asked him how long he had been a mason and with his answer I knew that I needed to ask him another question. Did you ever happen to work with my dad? I told Rich his name and he got VERY QUIET... his answer... "I was his apprentice." I think we both knew that he was the PERFECT person to add the stone to our house. I treasure that memory of meeting Rich. I treasure the quality workmanship he created for us and the memories he must have had of my dad while he worked to make us something beautiful to last our lifetime. Thanks Rich.
