“ Shannon, I am going to miss you very much. I have known you for about 6 years now and you came to live with me and Carl when you were about 5-6 months pregnant with Kendra. When we moved back to CA you would call me from the apartment you and Jeff lived in and before Jacob was born. You would call almost and 6 days a week for advice, help and just to gab. I never yelled at you when you were making wrong decisions I would just listen and give you the best advice I could. I don't know what really happened the night you passed, and I feel bad that you didn't call me so I could help you. You were doing so good and in my heart I know something must have happened to put you in the situation you were in. I will die protecting Kendra and will always be there for her and your mom, dad, and brother. I was so happy when you started calling me mom and I feel like your mom, not blood, but all love and protectiveness. I am going to try and help your parents the best I can in any way they may need. May God Bless your soul, may you enjoy heaven to the fullest and please watch over your children and family. I know you are not suffering any longer and your in a much happier place. Peace be with you and you will never be forgotten.

I love you Shannon. You're my best friend, have been for ten years. Even in passing you will still be my bestest friend. No one can ever replace or take away all of the memories we made over the years. You were always like a sister to me. Now, you're my guardian angel and watching over the babies and all of us; as well as keeping Nathan company. I stopped by his grave site today, to tell him that you're up there with him and that you need two need to keep an eye on each other and keep an eye on everyone else. I love you, and I know that you aren't suffering anymore. I'm going to stay strong for you, because I know that's what you want. Rest in peace my love. Our memories will live on.

“ You were the best girlfriend I ever could have asked for. I loved, will always love, and miss you. Even though we were only together for a fairly short time, I knew you for quite a few years. You were always loving, caring, hilarious, and nerdy. (Even though you were always trying to deny it.) You don't get much nerdier than playing WoW babe. You will always be in my heart hun, I already miss you desperately. I love you my little nerd! Rest peacefully.
