“ Virginia was the most loving mother of myself and my 3 siblings. She had a rough childhood with her own mother passing when she was only 7. She and her sister, Barb, were sent to Boston to be raised by her aunt who barely had enough money for her own family. She finally returned to her father and a new stepmother to settle down in St Clair Shores. She graduated ahead of her classmates and found employment in bookkeeping.

“ In my family research, I have learned that Virginia's father, John, was a first cousin of my father Francis Carleton McVarish (1909-1995), of the Boston area. Thus Virginia and I were second cousins.
